WHAT THE CRITICS SAY

“No company of non-professional players has excelled the superior acting of the University of Manitoba players. . . . They are indeed wonderful.”

Forbes Robertson: “How my heart aches to play ‘Argon’ for you; how my soul thrills with the news that Winnipeg is at last to enjoy something of infinite worth! Martin Harvey joins me in expressing the heartfelt hope that you will play the British Isles at an early date. After all, ‘The Play’s the Thing.’”

H. G. Wells: “Out of the abysmal ignorance and appalling misconception so rampant in this hectic world of today is wafted a wooing note of hope; the word that Manitoba University is attempting the incomparable Moliere for theatrical performance. As I said so exhaustively in Volume I. ‘Outline of History,’ ‘Alexander, Julius Caesar, Napoleon, et al. were the bunk; but Moliere was a servant . . . and so a leader . . . of humanity.’ My warmest congratulations.”
